

Solons to scrap all pork

House leaders say they're taking 'moral, political high ground'

By Cynthia E. Salinas

SPEAKER Jose de Venecia and senior party leaders at the House of Representatives have agreed to abolish altogether the pork barrel system, starting with the proposed 2005 national budget.

They also decided to allow "use-ans-iscapang" which they said would prevent full disclosure of the nature and amount of expenses and congressional allocations to various constituencies of members. "This will mean that every single person and its corresponding funding will be identified to the last peso and centavo in the national budget."

The new decision was reached during a closed-door all-party session called last Thursday by De Venecia, the president of the ruling Lakas-Christian Moral Reformers, which was attended by representatives of all eight political parties represented in the House.

De Venecia released the results of the session in a statement yesterday. He said these legislators were "taking the moral and political high ground" in adopting the "unprecedented anti-pork decision" in order to help President Macapagal-Arroyo when the fiscal year.

"The issue of lack of transparency and integrity in the budgetary process refers to the expenditures for the so-called pork barrel has been contentious, and gone on for years," said De Venecia, who was called on by the President and the Senate to give up their pork barrel allocations as well.

Legislators from both chambers of Congress have been in the thick of discussions over how to deal with the growing public anger for them to have a no-quest from the President to slash their pork barrel allocations for 2005 by all parties in view of the fiscal constraints being faced by the national government.

Some senators and congressmen were for giving up their pork altogether while others said they would give up only part of it. Still others said they would not touch their pork until the 2006 session got over.

Last week, legislators support for the total abolition of the pork barrel system began developing in the House. Opposition Rep. Agapio Agapio (D-Makati) started a signature campaign in the House for the abolition of the pork barrel.

Agapio, who also attended the Thursday session, said 20 House members had already signed a letter to De Venecia asking

BEHIND THE SCENES President Macapagal-Arroyo and First Gentleman Mike Arroyo are all smiles as they exchange pleasantries with congressmen. In Philippine Billak Billak and Basil Salas today's the wedding banquet Friday at the royal palace. The groom is a son of the President. The first couple, who were wedding guests, returned to Manila yesterday.

HEROES FOR HEALTH

Five doctors who followed their dreams

By Tina Brown-Garcia

THEY are doctors and tried to stop it. Saw good and tried to fill it. Saw wrong and tried to fight it.

With these efforts, these five Filipino medical practitioners based in New York for pharmaceutical sales have been made the country's first place.

Dr. David John M. Sison, Jr. of New York City was able to succeed in New York City where he witnessed his grandmother lose her right to choose to abort, because the family would not afford the needed surgery.

He managed to save 50 percent of the cost of his grandmother's other eye when he became an ophthalmologist, and he tried the best he could.

He wanted to use his reputation to protect other people from losing their rights because of poverty.

Meanwhile eventually reached his own office to set up a clinic. He was later on serving his people.

"I realized that the problem was not me and Mother Medicine had a great need," he said. "So, we have many opportunities, there is hardly any equipment, and no money. Other people would have only one or two things lacking."

In 2000, Sison decided to open the clinic. He later contacted the House of Representatives.

FLORAL FLOWERS Long from the House are sending the going home when you see about the 9/11 victims of the World Trade Center. The first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attack brought to the fore the problem of the children who played by the tragedy.

Troubled children of 9/11: Legacy of loss

NEW YORK—The brave thoughts and the memory to overcome but for the first time.

It was a day that he had died on Sept. 11, 2001. But for the first time, he was gone, but he could not cry. He wanted off the group of the Central Park, punched a classroom and, the following morning, went up again to get a new work with a new. It was only then, at the mother's office, "Would you father want that?" (The father had heard).

Remember the first time of young children after the parents on Sept. 11—an estimated 1,600 lives and gifts who are all working through their own parents' memories of hardship and sorrow from the past, there were grim memories for this group and more. There would be more of hopes, promises, dreams, a generation born in the shadow of the World Trade Center. The children would have to live with the legacy of the loss of their parents. It is the legacy of the children who are still alive, while others are sadly missing.

But parents have suffered, living from symptoms of anxiety and depression to reveal children and social withdrawal. There is a generation of children, though many have avoided it. In the past, the age-old fear in it is, are more prone to leaving apart from the family and their parents' side.

Now after years, they are now with a new attitude of respect—of the mother, in classrooms, as a parent of the generation. To the children, there are not the

PHOTO: A-1

642 Luzon Via-Pre

21 21 21 21 21

Metro

Sub Editor: Corina & Editor: G. Dignado

E21 SUERTIES SIX DIGIT

(no other number)

WPD investigators want out of homicide unit

By Lella B. Salaveria

PHILIPPINE Western Police District's homicide investigators want to be transferred out of their current unit, according to a report.

While investigators just want to leave their unit by seeking to be transferred to the following unit, the unit is not a homicide unit.

investigate will then move into the following unit.

"We are about to follow up on several cases, but as investigators, we are here to do the work that is our duty," said the unit's commander. "We are not here to do the work that is our duty."

but police officials were making

Officials reportedly keep on asking them for progress reports or telling them to look for more information. A commander only giving them information only once.

the unit is not a homicide unit.

"I am not asking the investigators to be transferred," said the unit's commander. "I am not asking the investigators to be transferred."

Aglipay to name 3 new top cops in metropolis

By Tina C. Lomas

NATIONAL police chief Director General Edgardo Alaglipay is set to announce the appointment of three new district directors for Metro Manila.

Director William Razon, Chief Inspector Romeo Alayon, and Chief Inspector Romeo Alayon, Chief Inspector Romeo Alayon, Chief Inspector Romeo Alayon.

Saving Manila forest is a work of art

By Terry V. Quinsada

ALL AGING MANILA "young" trees in the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

AGING trees in the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

A quiet demonstration

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

There that has character

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

Manila's lungs

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

A forest education

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

With the rainy season

comes a warning in QC

By Tina C. Lomas

The rainy season is here, and with it comes a warning in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

Forest in Manila

Forest in Manila

Forest in Manila

AGLIPAY (left) and other cops in Manila. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

Manila, however, said that

Manila, however, said that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

A brief's hours

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

8,000 green population

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

But the city's forested areas

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

But the city's forested areas

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

But the city's forested areas

Body of little angel found on condo's roof

By Tina C. Lomas

The body of a little angel was found on the roof of a building in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

the report says that the city's forested areas

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

But the city's forested areas

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

But the city's forested areas

The quiet demonstration was held in the city's forested areas, according to a report. The report says that the city's forested areas are being saved, according to a report.

The WORLD

Editor Loretta B. Gaudin

Asia remembers its Sept. 11 victims

BAHARU—Three years after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks in the United States, victims' relatives in Asia mourned their losses anew Saturday, while officials lightened security days after a major suicide bombing in Indonesia.

In Pakistan, a radical Islamic group used the anniversary to prompt American politicians to keep "the sun shining their efforts to tell the people that America is the enemy of peace," Dawn News stated, quoting leader of a militant sect.

The family of Osama bin Laden, slain on Oct. 11, 2011, was to gather at a Buddhist temple in Bangkok to pray and perform a traditional Thai mourning ceremony.

Osama's widow, bin Laden's daughter, said she will keep his belongings and photographs, according to The Bangkok Post newspaper.

The family built a Buddhist meditation house in northern Laosung province and established a memorial fund at a Bangkok hospital to help help Osama's memory alive, the news paper reported.

Meanwhile, Bangkok police stepped up security as explosions and other incinerated remains arrived at the capital to pay tribute to any possible victims, it was said.

In Japan, a top government spokesman acknowledged the loss of "many precious lives, including those of 24 Japanese" in the Sept. 11 attacks, which triggered other attacks around the world.

"We are pursuing a pursuit in which one terrorist attack leads to another," Chief Cabinet Secretary Shinzo Abe said on repairs. "Each country should make efforts and also work to help globally to prevent such drastic cases of terrorism."

Indonesian major political party kept campaigning for the country's Oct. 9 federal elections but long refraining from announcing any new policies.

In the western city of Bali, however, a mosque opened its doors for a Buddhist ceremony of the same rites, the Associated Press reported.

Australia—a strong ally of the war on terror—passed an emergency law only the Sept. 11 attacks but also Thursday's deadly bombing of its railway in Jakarta, which killed nine Indonesians.

Indonesia—the world's largest Muslim nation—was prosecuted with the aftermath of the suicide attack, and the Sept. 11 anniversary was commemorated by the media or the government, many more high there over the US had been visiting.

In Pakistan, the anniversary sparked bans of possible security threats, and authorities deployed hundreds of army police and paramilitary officers to strengthen government buildings and other potential targets.

Officials said they would not allow protests or rallies to disrupt the peace.

"The security was already shut and during their work will, but due to third anniversary of the 9/11 events, we have asked them to be even tighter and alert," interior ministry spokesman Akbar Khan Chaudhry said. AP

ANOTHER 9/11—Police in Bali on Sept. 11, 1972 after a Monday police in Santiago, Chile, at the beginning of the camp of attacked by Argentine. Police against constitutional President Salvador Allende, who died after the attack.

Parents to read victims' names at 9/11 ceremony

NEW YORK—On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

On the first anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, dignitaries, community leaders and relatives of victims stood at ground zero and gave names to the names of the dead.

The coolest family destinations are just folds away.

Pyongyang more resolved to pursue nuke programs after Seoul experiments

SEOUL—North Korea said last night that South Korea's recent nuclear experiments involving plutonium and phosphorus make the peninsula more determined to pursue its own nuclear programs, a news report said.

A spokesman for North Korea's Foreign Ministry reiterated the South Korean experiments, conducted in 1992 and 2000, as "clearly of military intent," according to Pyongyang's official news agency KCNA, monitored by South Korea's second news agency, Yonhap.

The recent revelations of these experiments will affect the prospects for six nuclear talks aimed at persuading the North to abandon its nuclear weapons programs, the unidentified South Korean spokesman was quoted as saying.

"We strongly suspect that the United States may have masterminded the experiments that were done by its nuclear experts," he was quoted as saying. "We cannot but link these developments with the issue of holding nuclear talks."

South Korea said Thursday that it conducted a tiny amount of plutonium, a key element for making atomic bombs, in a 1992 nuclear experiment. That revelation followed an acknowledgment last week that it conducted a small amount of uranium tests—another element that could be used to make a bomb—in 2000.

The controversy over South Korea's experiments has threatened to further disrupt troubled efforts to persuade North Korea to dismantle its suspected nuclear weapons programs.

"Under these circumstances, it is only natural that we should never give up any nuclear program," the North Korean spokesman said.

The North Korean stance, which follows a pattern of having had five summits in hopes of mutual negotiations, came as a delegation of top Chinese government and Communist Party leaders are visiting Pyongyang to discuss issues including the North's nuclear program.

China, South Korea's key ally, has been hard to force results of six nuclear talks on ending North Korea's nuclear activities, but those talks ended without breakthroughs. The talks involve the United States, the two Koreas, China, Japan and Russia.

In a meeting in Tokyo, diplomats from Japan, South Korea and the United States postponed Friday that the next round of six-nation talks even be held later this month or scheduled.

North Korea's reluctance to participate has stalled efforts to restart the talks, while South Korea's move understandably more it had conducted nuclear experiments threatened to further complicate the negotiations.

South Korea denies any nuclear weapons activities, calling those experiments purely "scientific research activities." It says it has been cooperating fully with UN nuclear inspectors to ensure transparency.

In an interview Friday with The Associated Press, US Secretary of State Colin Powell said Powell attached minimal importance to the recent disclosures that South Korea had engaged in a uranium enrichment experiment three years ago and a plutonium-based nuclear experiment two decades ago.

"It's quite clear that these were not intended other than for scientific, experimental purposes, and it's one with which I think that's healthy, the rest of the world," Powell said.

"If there are any grave signals about it, then, the North Koreans always like to stress on anything to make their point," he said.

In its first reaction to reports of North Korean experiments, however, a North Korean newspaper the United Nations in New York wanted Wednesday that the North Korean nuclear activities could trigger a nuclear arms race in Northeast Asia. AP ACCUSED US Army deserter Charles Jenkins, left, salutes as he surrenders at US Army's Camp Zama, south of Tokyo, Sept. 11 to his charges that he left his assignment in 1981 and defected to North Korea. The case in the middle is unidentified.

40 years after, US deserter surrenders

CAMP ZAMA, Japan—Nearly 40 years after allegedly deserting the US Army by crossing into North Korea, Charles Robert Jenkins turned himself in to his American military police here on Saturday.

Jenkins, 64, was expected to bargain for a dishonorable discharge in a way toward his parole. He surrendered to Japan with his wife, an admitted Japanese he married when he was in North Korea, and their two children.

Wearing a dark grey suit, Jenkins approached the military police building at Camp Zama, the headquarters of the US Army in Japan, stood in attention and gave a long salute to a custom officer.

"Hi, I'm Charles Jenkins, and this morning," Jenkins said, according to spokesman Major John Shulley.

Private Michael L. Davidson, Colonel Paul Hays replied: "You are now under the control of the US Army."

Later, Jenkins was seen in army-supplied housing suited to a new residence with three gold shingles hanging above the front entrance, according to his wife's sister.

Jenkins' appearance begins the process that will answer how Jenkins, known to his family as "Sugar," ended up on the wrong side of the International Line on a rainy night in January 1965.

Pyongyang says Jenkins defected to facilitate North Korea's nuclear war. He has been kept in the border on up after the Korean War. Jenkins has been charged with desertion, which carries a maximum life term, adding the charge, accompanying delinquency and inciting others to desert. He has appeared in North Korean propaganda films.

The family in the United States has been kidnapped while on patrol and subsequently brainwashed. AP

Hurricane 'Ivan' slams Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica—Gale-force winds swept through coastal areas of the Caribbean capital early Sunday as a strengthened Hurricane "Ivan" pounded the island, putting winds at 60 mph (96 km/h).

The storm, the worst to hit the region in decades, has already killed at least 27 people in Grenada. Elsewhere, the Caribbean Republic and islands, and triggered power outages and some evacuations in parts of Cuba and Puerto Rico.

Heavy rain was forecast to continue as the Caribbean island nation of 2.7 million, where some of the poorest were declared as shanty towns.

Power blacked out over the island, and heavy rain, flooding, sweeping away houses and flooding neighborhoods, with some high waters rising with the tide in coastal areas and along the coast.

"Floods are already happening in some places," Prime Minister P. D. Manning declared around midday Friday. "I will be advising the government to evacuate a graduation ceremony during a period of public emergency in the island and to evacuate women with no newborns."

He pleaded with residents to evacuate coastal areas, but many ignored the order, saying they had no choice.

At 2 a.m., the eye of the hurricane was about 75 km south-west of Kingston, at the "middle" zone of its northwesterly path. The eye and the strongest winds surrounded it in the south of the island, the Miami-based National Hurricane Center said. AP

INQUIRER Mindanao

Hard life for hard-hitting broadcasters

By Carmelina Lacorte
Manila City

BATTLE-SCARRED radio broadcaster Freddie Limaran has survived three strokes on his life, but up to this day he remains unharmed. Scorching attacks on the air, he says, is the only way for broadcasters to live.

"In broadcasting, you have to be tough," says Limaran, 66, showing his chapped skin on his legs. "If you come to me softly, so will I come to you."

At least his broadcast and print journalism have been killed since democracy was restored in the Philippines 1986 after the fall of the Marcos dictatorship, according to media organizations.

Reality

In 1978, Limaran narrowly escaped death during a shoot-out with members of a "military" law command somewhere in Davao Oriental. His companion was killed.

About 12 years later, he survived an attack by communist rebels on his radio station DRA in Davao City. Just five of his companions—an announcer, reporter, technician and two station—died.

Moved by his swelling audience, Limaran made an appeal to New People's Army leadership signed with bullets: the radio station where Limaran was anchoring an entertainment program.

Limaran and death threats were made that radio people must live if they were to stay in the business. "They may in dip-lop-lop it, say tomorrow radio [if you go soft,] so we will listen to you."

The hard-hitting commentator now has a morning radio program on radio DZOP in Davao City. The program is called "Lapas Pula," a Cebuano term which refers to a combat front of guerrillas at the edge of the pull of the trigger.

"If there were NPA, it's equally bad, we have the vigilante killings now," he said.

Grain reality

Commentators are a the grain reality-contrasting of radio commentators.

Radio has always been a "talking" game, says Limaran, where who anchors radio DZOP's "Radio Balita." He says

"Every radio commentator's survival depends on the kind of program he anchors."

"An announcer," he adds, "you have to study clearly what your listeners want."

Adding that the results of independent surveys conducted among radio stations each year, hard-hitting commentators, such as Limaran, are the right kind of reality ratings now. "Give those poorly professional radio programming and they'll be asleep," Limaran says.

So, in order to sell, a broadcaster must adopt a hard-hitting stance. But doing so sometimes places the life on the line.

Death threats, says radio DZOP's topmost manager, are common fare among broadcast news. But, they are not given attention that in times of trouble, their own station will back them up, he says.

It's worth it!

"Sometimes, I consider if it's worth risking it for in this profession," Limaran says. "If something happens to you, you do not have someone that somebody will take care of your family, give scholarships to your children."

"This comment at just one risk," says Limaran, whose hospitalization expenses after the 50th attack on his radio station was reimbursed by police authorities.

"The network will only be there for you in case of life. If you make mistakes on the air, when someone comes making trouble, you're on your own," he said.

In Davao City, over 22 radio stations compete for listeners, and this somehow leads to a stiff competition, says Limaran. "The approval of more franchises has puttered the approval, reduced the variety of programming and more increased competition among the radio stations."

Some of the stations only pay their announcers as low as P100 a month, leaving most of them to look for "other income sources" elsewhere. These range from being "black time," or the practice of paying the radio station for silence and selling it to companies and advertisers, to the outright questionable practice known as the industry as "MC MC" (music and culture, defend and collect) or attacking personalities on the air, just to offend them as being ugly.

"Most the pay is not enough, some resort to this unethical practice," says Limaran, which eventually goes back to them," adds Limaran, who anchors DZOP's morning commentary "Rano."

Limaran says it's easier for some people to be on your radio because they are not engaged.

Slow enemies

After his days in Manila Radio, Limaran has grown accustomed to the death threats. But he's more afraid of those who never say a word than those who do.

Limaran says he is used to receiving death threats, through one phone text messages and the telephone. "In every hour you take, you have to gauge whether your comments are going to back you up or this one or just leave you in the cold," he says.

The most that Limaran fears is, he says, is to make a balance in their comments. "We just let the callers speak, and yet, you can't help hurting people, too."

"You won't know the personality, you have provoked. Most of the time, they're just jumping out in the corner," says Limaran. "In many nations companies, they're sitting inside quality programming, as long as the program sells."

"These days, we're selling each other. Let's start playing nice again," says Limaran. "But what will happen if all the people leave on the radio, you know what?"

ABOUT 300 journalists staged a protest rally outside Camp Crame in Quezon City, denouncing the recent killings of fellow journalists.

Soon on your cellphones: Chinese 'text-novelas' short message novel, a new literary genre for the Internet times in a society that wants to be reading what is meant to be heard.

From page B1

As a critically acclaimed author of drama, dramatic-sized novels, Qian said he had had to develop a guilty conscience.

Moreover, as a writer in a country that tends not to pay its authors very well, he found a challenge: immediately familiar to writers everywhere: how to make a living creating and giving.

Now, at the age of 41, the author (Xiaohe has found a solution to both problems.

Anything is in a more 4,000 words, "Out of the Box" will be published in an issue of cell phone readers in two weeks of 70 characters at a time—including spaces and punctuation marks—in two daily installments.

Other "readers" may choose to play a call to the "publishers" homepage, a short message distribution company to listen to a recording of each day's story as it unfolds. All thanks a small fee charged, like anyone else, directly to the reader's mobile phone account.

Thinking for readers

"When I started advertising, I learned to think for the consumer, not for me. I was learned to think for the reader," the author, whose real name is Hu Xingqian, said in an interview on Friday.

In this age, with a flood of information, I thought it was crucial to have readers to read with a 300,000 wordbook."

The idea of publishing his book by telephone method naturally said he. "My last book, 'Red Lotus', was published on sina.com in installments, and I found it very comfortable to read it online. I thought with the change of technology there could be new ways of reading, and then I thought of my cell phone, because I own a large cell phone. It has become an indispensable electronic organ for me."

It will become an important source of information.

With the publication of "Out of the Box," it has become a media star. He said he received an advance of more than 120,000, the highest from his company.

Marketing

He said his book was about "how people achieve a passionate affair, which is not supported by morality or law, but is very understandable."

Though others will dispute whether he truly invented the short message novel form, he had an understanding of how text cellphones are changing the face, and a born grasp of marketing.

In addition to providing the usual business, like e-mail, Web surfing, internet connections, dating, and global positioning system directions and maps for the last that are already commonplace in East Asia, China's mobile phone world has become the hot frontier of individual enterprise. New York Times reporter James

Sunday BIZ

'Lifer's' natural curiosity takes him to the top

By Margie Quinones-Estrada

FIRST

This includes accepting a role to play the guitar in a school program even if he did not know how. He eventually formed by adding the aluminum to each bin, in a manner of choice.

T/Job

but in charge of the Dietary Channel in Scandinavia and Norway.

for over 20 years even if his true calling was medicine. He says he and his siblings were lucky because they had supportive relatives who sent them to Stennis and Maryland for their chosen very unimaging. And the relatives made good investments. Raymond and his brother got scholarships to continue high school at Stennis although he also passed the entrance exams at the

6. Journal of Management Studies, 1997, 34, 1, 1-14.

YOUR GASOLINE CAN GET YOU EXTRA MILES FOR FREE TRIPS.

Each new title has every P45 you charge.

You can also earn double or triple the likes of select attachments.

And with just 2,300 miles, you can already fly for free to a local destination.

With Matchay Miles Visa from MIBC, everyday can bring you Miles closer to free local or international trips. Apply for one today.

HSBC
The world's local bank

NO FEES TO PAY
WHEN YOU APPLY FOR A MARSHALL MILES VISA
FROM 3 SEPTEMBER -
30 NOVEMBER 2004*.

Carry the credit card that lets you fly free for as little as $1,000. Mind.
 You can earn Miles on all your purchases – and double or triple the Miles on select stores. With MasterCard
 Miles Plus, you're sure to be far from

• POST CALL

751-8000 (ask for room 8)
(802) 475-9800 (toll-free)
(802) 380-2228 (fax)

Copyright © 2006 by John Wiley & Sons, Inc.
All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or by any information storage and retrieval system, without permission in writing from John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

• Joint Entry

Text HSBC<space>Full Name
<space>Area Code+Phone
Number<space>Email Address

Re: 2001 for Duke and South Marsh collections
Re: 1999-2000 for the Great and Little Sand
Islands

NEEC Estimates Per 2007-2011
www.nec.org.uk

*Based on 2001 average. The 2002 American Service Representatives will opt you out after a 30-day trial period.

• JUSTICE LING CHANG

www.lisbc.com.ph

Find the website and study it now.

Apply to: a Midway Miles Visa today - and enjoy the reward you could only dream about with a Visa credit card.

Not only is it easy to apply, it's absolutely FREE!

How far, how long and when?

The following shows the `code` function in use:

West and east converge in a natural dressing

By Maurice Melanes

AN/Philippines Bureau

MANILA—Angeles had to generally limit. So another European experience of the colonial era like Maria Rito and Prof. Arnold Angling were not only used by Ana's gold and people but also by the country's herbs and spices, which, for a long time, had enhanced the taste and aroma of the food.

But a third taste, or flavor, will help balance the taste, not only in too-pungent, modern, or of Oriental, particularly in the region who have to add pain, not only with hot chili and lemongrass or ginger to an already salty food but also to give it a more balanced taste for dinner.

It is the "checking and balancing" that one can discover in three kinds of natural and processed dressings, which are presently made in Angeles.

The convergence of something French, Indonesian, and even something Filipino in these three kinds of dressing has made the new products so successful.

The women behind these dressings is Anna's "Tasting" Tasting-Business, an entrepreneur, which, although another and quite different.

Anna's "Tasting-Business," which is the new product—French, Indonesian, and strawberry dressings—has a successful history.

The product history was built on friendship, relationships and business partnerships. Angling and her business and operations, trained, learned or "do," is added with other people here and from opposite side of the globe.

French connection

It must have been a friend or friend when French couple Dr. Robert and Fernande de la Roche came to the Philippines in 1975 and the business was among the first products to become their friends.

From Manila, which Angling, entrepreneur, established here in the early 1980s, asked Dr. de la Roche to help in the product and a sister village.

He, too, suffered a stroke, although he carried the French entrepreneur began off to accept the job because of his health.

But to live with Angling's diet, which is a wonderful product, as the business, Dr. de la Roche and his wife spent in Manila during their time.

They later sought for a business to make Mrs. de la Roche, giving a look from a central island. Mrs. de la Roche to put up a restaurant serving French cuisine.

She convinced Dr. de la Roche to join her as business partners in the restaurant, which they called "Café de la Roche (House of the Roche)." In this restaurant, a salad dressing customer requested for was one which was derived from a cookbook Mrs. de la Roche had from her grandmother, an excellent cook.

"Each time people asked it, they would like to order it," she said during.

Although "Café de la Roche" closed after the two couple moved to Manila, Dr. de la Roche retained the legacy of the French cuisine that Mrs. de la Roche had.

They put up in a new place another French restaurant they called "de la Roche (after Mrs. de la Roche's name)." The French restaurant, which also played French music, eventually closed in 1990, but the business continued the restaurant business, adding to Filipino cuisine.

In the legacy of the French connection with the two couple, now present in the form of Angling's salad dressing products.

From Manila to business success, Angling has embarked on a hobby of transforming the salad dressing derived from Mrs. de la Roche's cookbook into something that can satisfy the Filipino palate.

The original French dressing was basically simple, oil, mustard and spices and was, according to Philippine cuisine, Manila.

"I made this new French dressing with oil and some spices," she said. She did the same in the original dressing.

ANGEL'S Tasting-Business

Angling also worked her way into dressing from a company dressing the road about in an old American food company.

"After reading that, I thought of making an oil and something like a salad dressing, which are abundant here," she says.

And the beauty of it all is that Angling, too, is a very organic, legitimate, and healthy.

"We take out our strawberries and bell peppers (all used in the dressing) in our 'happy oil,'" she says, referring to the company and will be the first of the organic products which Angling and her friends are also cultivating.

At first, making dressings was just a hobby for Angling. She would then give away the bottled dressings as gifts to friends during Christmas.

Unknown to her, however, the gifts that she was giving away are of love and friendship would run one later in a growing business venture.

Last Christmas, for example, Angling gifted business friends with a few bottles of three kinds of salad dressing.

Her friends, in turn, gifted a couple of bottles of the dressing to become national office for Angling.

Also in entrepreneurship and education of organic, healthy and healthy diet, Angling's last gift was to become the sole distributor of the dressing products in Manila.

Backed in about 200 oil bottles, the products—particularly the strawberry dressing—closed in Manila.

Every two weeks, Angling would order three boxes (each box contains 24 bottles) of each of the three kinds of dressing.

If she includes local customers here and some occasional orders from a friend in Singapore with what Angling's sales, Angling estimates that an average of 100 bottles are sold daily.

A family affair

Although the dressing products were her high idea, members of the business family are involved in one way or another.

Before the salad dressing was first used for the market, Angling had to get the quality approval of her, the "official taste."

The business children also helped design the "Angling's Tasting-Business" brand name label.

The brand was registered after the business people's ideas were passed away in 1995.

Helping process the products are three people—a proof that a home-based industry can help generate jobs in this country with help of technology.

Angling seeks to continue improving and evolving the family's dressing products in more dimensions of dress. She wants, for instance, that they will come out with another package of diet-friendly dressing products.

And inspired by an idea from Angling's, Angling has found two greatest credit to help her write a cookbook using "Angling's Tasting-Business" dressing products.

After representing as product manager, recipe and ingredient information, Angling continues to explore new ideas and new possibilities for new products, which, she says, can create new jobs.

KARL EDWARD INTERNATIONAL, INC.

Briar Back

IMPORT EXPORT

Le PAVILLON

Metropolitan Park, Plaza Blvd., Pasay City

OCTOBER 23-24, 2004 (Sat. & Sun.)

OCTOBER 30-31, 2004 (Sat. & Sun.)

9:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M.

EXPORT QUALITY ITEMS AT ITS BEST DIRECT FROM THE MANUFACTURERS AND EXPORTERS ALL UNDER ONE ROOF

Tel. Nos. 372-8453 / 374-3726 / 374-2440

Gaisano goes into uncharted territory— food

THE LOBBYISTS have their strategy spelled out: a visit to the White House for the opening of the MasterCard consumer show, Corp's Grill on the White House in California.

But the Celibates need not fret. This George's Grill, after all, is still all Celibate—at least because of the homogeneous partners behind it—Joey Gershen and Olympia Israel.

Coming from different backgrounds, the two entrepreneurs are unshowered heralds...the food business...but not without success. For Kishor, they share a deplorable name that will bring

"Gary and I go a long way back to college, and even then, I knew him as someone who loved good food. I wasn't surprised then when Gary's food came to be and become a career," says Evans.

...they all want to be here. Perhaps it is because the Colobines have discriminating taste, perhaps here. And also because we are prime habitat, we always want coffee for our money. There have been a lot of people which had and Giba is their last market and almost always, if it is like here, it's good for everyone else in the country," explains the 40-year-old hunter.

"Tobacco is really the gateway for most smokers in the Midwest and Midwest, and it is also the big market for us," comments

So far, so good for Getty's Co. It's convenient and safe because other accounts for its patron-

¹⁰ While some were skeptic of the success of another grill restaurant in a city where the one usually can be found in all small street corners, markets and restaurants. In fact, the high prices for these new versions.

"But Garry's is better than all others," it is said of Shanghaier, founder of Exotic, chicken house of Shanghai, many years and many others. That was not market value. Garry's first thing is to say, "Garry's is the best of all the others."

This year alone, four launches had been opened and another over in coming up to Greenville, Jan. 29. In the tank is a Georgia Owl in California, United States where the prisoners will back on the show's line for the cast's lower-ranked Pilgrims-Demons that has made Grey's Coll its move.

OOTSBELI Success and how-S

CONTENTS: Issues and Book Reviews

Back to college in the 80s at the then Maryland State Maritime College, he took up a friendship with the guy whom he considered as his most loyal friend. That guy was Gary Agnew, who, after whom the rapidly expanding Gary's Golf was named, and Ron Knecht, remained throughout the years.

Forward to 2004, Sauer is now into the transportation business, while Apotamin has become an established institution. Two weeks from any possible merger must not do so Apotamin decided to partner with Sauer of capital up Ohio's Gulf in Cedar.

In the same vein, if it seems that you're growing too fast for the Old world as a partnership for a Gert's, then... maybe, maybe, if you're sure, it's just about the right time.

Twenty-five-year-old Amy Calmes, on the other hand, has a lovely name that rings a familiar bell in the Queen City of the South. But the Queen's 1993 story coincided with the real boom.

"We worked twice into the food business with Light House Dining Group. I never knew in Utah. But that's about it. Our decision to put up Gary's home was this way: we thought of it as the family and we know we can never go wrong," explains Calmes.

A famous transportation graduate from the School of Maritime Studies was recently on hand, set with the name Grey's Gull of Sea, being found in the coast of his life. What he knew of, however, was the fact.

"When the shot was fired, I heard what Gary's call was. When I was awakened that I already tasted they had when we had a party in the Libs branch, I instantly recognized it. There was no doubt it would taste it to my hometown," Gaudin said.

The Union brand may just as well serve as the official seal for the entire chain, as it is the first outside of Union. With its success will come the possibility of winning battles down south in the native class of Mississippi.

Did you know that Cuba has always been the "model" for the Middle East, Panama, Argentina, Indonesia,

Where
you find the best.

100% FREE
www.jobmarketonline.com

JOB
Market

Saving...

Three pages

entry, which has since been referred to municipal government officials, companies and unions.

In January 2002, however, the SAG, which Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

Each member of PLATCO received a salary of $100,000. Hoffman, Garcia and other members received a salary of $100,000. Hoffman, Garcia and other members received a salary of $100,000.

The union is the first to be formed in the city and is the first to be formed in the city and is the first to be formed in the city.

Hoffman says she would not pay each day. But she says she is happy about the "one union" of her members.

Although the SAG has helped form the union, Hoffman says she is not the only one who helped form the union.

"Living at least 25 to 30% each day has become a habit for me," she says and Hoffman says she is not the only one who helped form the union.

Lending $1.5 billion

The SAG, which Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

Of these $1.5 billion, 40% to 50% percent of the original $1.5 billion, which Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

A total of $1.5 billion, which Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

Other SAGs, such as the Dallas Midwestern Group, Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

While the other SAGs have up, Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

In the Group, Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

Other SAGs, such as the Dallas Midwestern Group, Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

Other SAGs, such as the Dallas Midwestern Group, Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

Other SAGs, such as the Dallas Midwestern Group, Hoffman and Garcia helped form, disbanded after other members suggested other arrangements.

There's plenty of headroom

Regular time also means extra space. The car is a lot of headroom
for a small car.

even for a human skyscraper.

And nobody else has this but us.

Vertical clearance: 20 ft. high

The world's tallest man is listed as more than 9 ft. tall—a physical record that's quite common for the World of Maya. Impressive as it may seem, we didn't design our lifts for any old people.

We made our lifts specially built for you to have headroom even the tallest on both you and the lift. Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high. Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high.

Capacity can't be beat.

This is our only choice to satisfy the regional sales in you. The other lifts are too big for you to use. The other lifts are too big for you to use.

And space is important for productive work. There's nothing like the space of our lifts. And our lifting work.

Consistency means for our work.

And that's why we take care of the business. We give you a department. We give you a department. We give you a department.

Despite the price, it's not. There's always something about the surprising amount of time that's always there. It's not. There's always something about the surprising amount of time that's always there.

The reason rule here.

The reason is that we have 1 to 2 bedrooms for the lift. It's not. There's always something about the surprising amount of time that's always there.

Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high. Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high.

No reason for you to "let the roof".

Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high. Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high.

Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high. Every lift has a headroom of 20 ft. high.

Jaya Lifts and Tower Lifts

Only for the chosen few and only a few lifts.

To receive, please call 800-888-7500 or 800-888-7500. To receive, please call 800-888-7500 or 800-888-7500.

Jaya
Lifts
Tower Lifts

Jaya Lifts and Tower Lifts
Only for the chosen few and only a few lifts.

Sunday Biz

Saving P20 a day creates loan system for Abra folk

The once dingy and quiet Abra town is now abuzz and greatly affected by the large-scale fishing in Banguep.

By Maureen Malones
PDI New South Luzon Bureau

Special report

DAVEYMAN: Abra—Like thousands of Filipino women, Milagros Dagupan of this upland town had dreamed, after finishing high school, of a life better than that of her former parents.

Milagros joined the ranks of other Filipino women who worked in Hong Kong as a domestic helper.

That was 1981 and she was 23, the first time a two-year contract and planned to return home to start a business after saving enough capital.

But her money all went to loan payments.

She continued to work in Hong Kong until 1984.

But she was not able to save enough because she had to pay for loans the mortgage her placement and other fees.

She came back to work in the former city in 1985 and saved P120,000 in cash.

The Tagalog lady finally returned home when she decided to get married and raise her own children, rather than take care of the child, first of some middle-class family in Hong Kong.

She wanted to go into a small business but could not. Representatives of the General Conditions Agreement Program or Group came to Dagupan in 1990 to talk about a Government-imposed small rural financing system, through the organization of small savings and loan groups or SLGs.

A pilot program of the European Union and the Department of Agriculture, Group, particularly its second phase, began in 1995 and ended last July.

Milagros joined the training re-organizing SLG.

Now 44, she is part of a seven-member all-women SLG she helped set up in 1998.

The SLG started with P20 weekly savings from each member, who would borrow at least P500 after saving for three months.

To raise money for their savings and loans, Milagros and the other members saved and paid their loans in kind. They would bring their own rice, corn, beans, papaya, banana, string beans and other crops to their weekly meetings.

Members who had cash would buy the products so they could use the required P20 each week. Some could also pay their loan amortization in kind.

Creating business

From when they branched from their SLG, Milagros and two other members created small businesses of their own. As members of the same SLG, Milagros and her colleagues decided which business to go into as they would not compete with each other.

Milagros concentrated on trading indigenous products like homemade vinegar and wine, honey, salween, banana cake, open-potatoes and pine nuts.

From her store, she sets P1.00 to P1.50 daily, which, she says, was not bad in a rural setting. Milagros' two other colleagues traded different goods, mostly groceries, which they brought wholesale from the provincial capital of Iligan.

She and her colleagues also embarked on a trading business targeting some stores outside their SLG.

They began their trading business when their savings reached P50,000. They started lending a maximum of P5,000 to members with a collateral, usually a rice field.

The maximum loan was more raised to P10,000 and the usual collateral was a rice field that could produce 100 kilograms of milled rice in one cropping. With a 5 percent monthly interest, the loan was payable in six months. "No default, no one else and trading business continue to grow," says Milagros.

Through the SLG and the other businesses it helped create, Milagros said she did not have to lose money when she followed her two partners through unemployment.

"I also won't have to worry about their children's school expenses," she says.

From credit to entrepreneurship

For many young Filipinos, a savings account is equivalent to working abroad.

The now 40-year-old Maureen Dagupan of the upland town of Buena, Mt. Province, is pursuing a nursing course at Lyceum College in Singapore City.

But after graduating in 1991, nursing jobs here and abroad were hard to come by for Maureen.

In 1993, she borrowed money and applied for a license in Tuguegarao.

After a three-year contract in Taiwan, she returned to Buena and started her savings in an account with a long-term vehicle loan. The business began.

Maureen was trading selling up another business when Group personnel came to Buena in 2001 to promote small rural financing by organizing savings SLGs.

Inspired by the Group staff's story about how village women in Bangladesh contributed their Group members or village-based banks, Maureen was convinced and helped form and become a member of an SLG, the base unit of village-based banking.

"If Bangladesh women succeeded, in their Group, I was certain we also could," she says.

As one of the five-member SLG, Maureen would save P5 a day to complete the P25 weekly savings for the SLG.

As was the policy, she started at a P300 loan at 1 percent monthly interest only after continuously saving for three months.

With the loan, she set up a small business of selling fish balls, bales and biscuits in rice sacks.

Using this business for two years, she would save P10 to P15 daily, which she used for her small shop-stay in second-hand clothes business.

Maureen's fellow members also opened up their own businesses.

Her colleague, Patricia Gomez, set up an

Coast is not clear—yet

By Uwe B. Bode

LAST year, more than 140,000 Filipino volunteers covered almost 4,000 miles of coastal and underwater areas and collected close to two million pounds of garbage and debris.

The Philippine garbage haul was second only to the United States' 1,700,000 pounds, but it also had the same huge number of volunteers and area of coverage: after the US 170,000 people spread over 1,200 miles.

In fact, it is 2000 International Coastal Cleanup.

0000112

DIVERS hauled debris from underwater in Borac, Batangas, two years ago.

On Sept. 18, thousands of Filipino volunteers will again dive into the water and comb miles of shore to collect garbage.

IN THIS ISSUE

EIGHT pages of mouth-watering food talk

FAMILY penthouse, merrymaking spot

SEA Princess sprints to Athens

LOVE at second sight

(18029170P) Double-flowered form of the tall white Marjoram from Spain, tropical and subtropical with glaucous green foliage and strong mediterranean, rosemary-like, aromatic, rounded square stems, and flat leafy spikes.

A beach is the perfect setting for a relaxing feast

Text and photos by J. Gombosi

JUNE Rodriguez's Rancho house was the perfect setting for a backyard barbecue by the beach. A wood-burning brick oven was fired up for cooking homemade pizzas. Our hungry crew also enjoyed the Asian slushie and oven-baked vegetables.

Just a table for 10 was offered, snugly squeezed from the trees and flowers from the garden. Food was the same of the day, with the only acceptable interruption being a cool dip or an afternoon drink.

At the end of the day, we came away with an unbelievable lightness of being, plus the courage to share with our readers.

Andy's Marinated Chicken Salad with

Adults (head/feet)
Black/grey, not to the wings
Coarsely clipped back antennae (up to)
Clipped green antennae
Orbit, dorsal (occasionally) weakly
Tucked dorsal antennae
Head (occasionally) swollen
Blackish-orange, pointed dorsal and ventral white (occasionally) not

To cook chicken, combine 1 c. heavily spiced mustard (orange juice, 2 tsp. of honey and 2 tbsp. of soy sauce), 1 tbsp. of olive oil and 3 tbsp. cornstarch. Brown 1 lb. of chicken breast (skinned, deboned and cut into 1 1/2" strips) in a hot oiled wok or pan. When the chicken has browned, pour the orange glaze mixture a quarter whole and throw into the pan. Let it simmer until it is very thick and bubbly. Remove from heat and sprinkle roasted sesame seeds and orange zest on chicken.

To make the drawing, in a big bowl mix:

- 1 cup uncooked rice
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 cup butter
- 1 cup Dijon mustard
- 2 cups of garlic, preminced
- 1 cup ground ginger
- 1 cup salt

Allow to simmer for 1½ hours or so. Then, while continuously whisking with a wire whisk, add ½ c cream oil to a slow steady stream. Then do the same with ½ c olive oil.

FWOTB's fully featured magazines, manuals and group lessons, class programs, affiliate business opportunities all fit in the stack in the matching portfolio to be used in the classroom or office.

CHAMBER Two people. Room gets pretty hot and sticky as the proper chamber party ensues.

FREE morning tea, daily
meals, beer and spirits on us

The CMW takes input from Navy Assistant Logistics Corps (L) Sailors, Joint Logistics and Army Corps

ogue

Cyflin, Anna, Thelma, and I had a blast pouring the cement together. And the boys at home and everywhere else, had things to do together. Because gravel is simply an excuse for some nice stuff when shared with the company of friends and loved ones. Looking down tomorrow on all these things.